See the site FAQ for instructions on how to attach data sources. Chased by police multiple times, likely the suspect's residence was demolished by police. That sort of thing will make a strong impression on a community. Good luck! Full transcripts. Help. The Notebook Readiness Assessment (NRA) is now available. It will be used to determine if your notebooks are suitable for a Data Challenge. Please share your experiences with the Notebook Readiness Assessment by posting comments on this post. Description: Following the release of the note book for the 24-hour Facebook Challenge in Kaggle, this blog post outlines the key features of the document and provides a roadmap of upcoming documents. This blog post includes multiple columns of content, so the Table of Contents below may differ slightly from the actual release. We introduce you to the Notebook Readiness Assessment (NRA), an easy-to-use assessment that will help teams determine if their notebook contains a sufficient level of detail and readiness for a Data Challenge. With the help of the NRA, we hope to identify three broad categories of note books: In the next blog post, we'll share the second half of our roadmap, focusing on the first two categories—the "Draft" and "Notebook Ready" categories. Once your team has finished the Assessment, you'll be notified via email. Once we've verified your team's results, we'll send you a survey to gather more feedback on your experiences with the NRA. We hope you find the NRA as helpful as we have with Kaggle's 24-hour Facebook challenge! Upcoming documents. The Roadmap of upcoming documents. Watch the community status page for the Notebook Readiness Assessment. Completion milestone. Notebooks that have not received an NRA score will be re-assessed at least once per month until they reach the NRA threshold. Rally Team! The Rallies for the Kaggle 24-hour Facebook Challenge are coming up! The goal of the rally is to form new teams. Rally participants are expected to make a final effort to recruit teammates and complete the remaining work on their notebooks, including the NRA. For more information about the rally, visit the Kaggle community forum. Developer note. The Notebook Readiness Assessment is intended to be a temporary measure to help us identify note books at an early stage in 82157476af
